Workcamp Weekends

Moon Beach Camp and Pilgrim Center are year-round facilities which serve the individuals and churches of Wisconsin and beyond. Even though we are open all year, there is a sizable amount of spring work which arrives as the snow melts and even more work just before the first snows of winter arrive.

The workcamps listed on these two pages give individuals and church groups an opportunity to “pitch in” and take pride and ownership in our fine facilities. Come help for the day, enjoy our fine food service, hospitality and facilities — and take home a sense of accomplishment and our gratitude!

Even if you can't fit one of these planned workcamps into your schedule, we're always ready to welcome help at either site! Find a day or weekend that works for you and call Jeff Puhlmann-Becker at Pilgrim Center or Glenn Svetnicka at Moon Beach to offer your help in transforming and improving our sites, bringing richness to our programs, or to offer whatever gift you may have to give!

Lumberjack Work Weekend

“Wood warms twice — once when cut and again when burned.” There are few more cozy images on a cold winter day than that of a fire in the fireplace.

Pilgrim Center is blessed with a beautiful wooded site on the shores of Green Lake. The natural cycle of life is always at work at camp with new trees taking root every year, and trees that have been part of camp for thousands of campers taking leave of life.

This work weekend is open to everyone who wants to help in tackling the many tasks at camp, but most specifically to those who want to get out in the woods and get in touch with the centuries-old task of stocking up wood for the winter!

We'll cut, split, stack and make room in God's woods for new trees to sprout and grow — and be part of the experience of camp for decades to come! Tune up your chain saw and bring it for a weekend of hearty work. Even if you don't have a saw, there is a lot of work you can do as we cut, split, and stack in anticipation of the cold days of winter.

Call the office at Pilgrim Center (920-PILGRIM) for more information.
